Position: Program Coordinator

Citizen Advocacy of Chester County is a local nonprofit that initiates and supports one-to-one citizen advocacy matches between people who have developmental disabilities and local citizens. This is not a desk job or a non-profit management job – this is hands-on work like community or voter organizing for a natural people person who has a strong sense of social justice, not afraid to ask people to do hard things, persuasive and clear in oral and written communications, well-connected in our community, and a curious observer and learner. Must be able to work independently and also like teamwork and networking. Should be a people person “who never meets a stranger.” Some travel for training and some evening work involved. Salary and benefits to be discussed.
